

Immigration and Immigrants in the USA

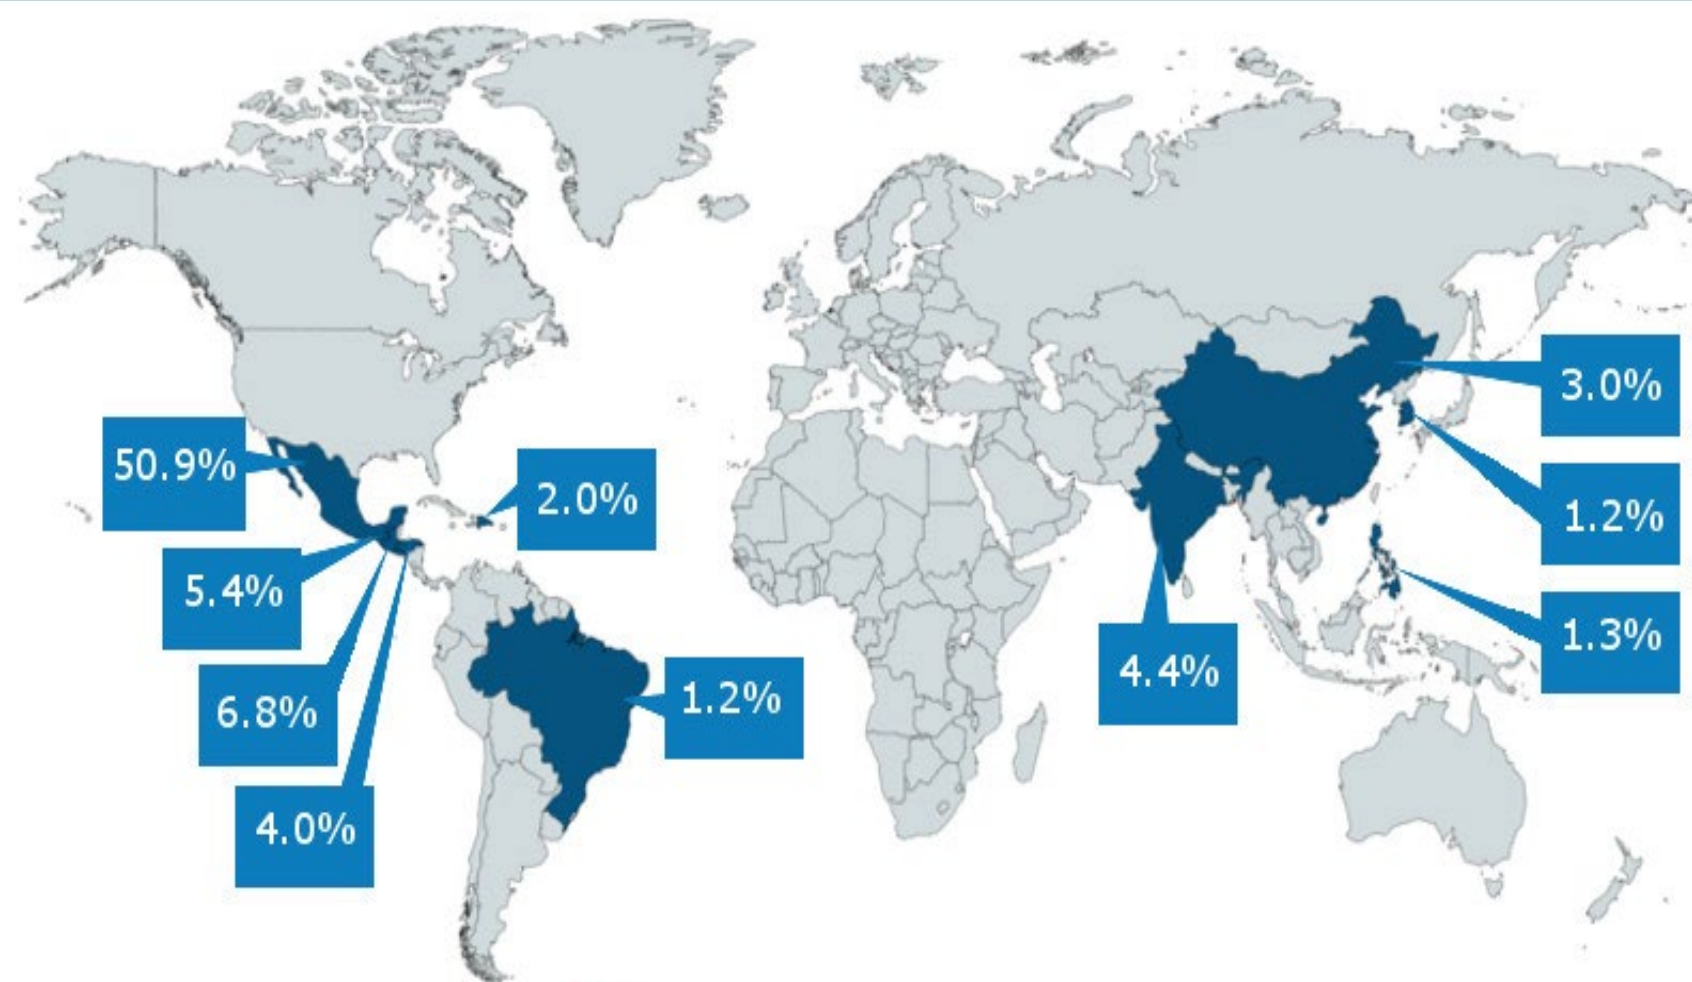

Anita Basukala
Advisor: Dr.Philip Z. Maymin
Department of Management (MBA-MS)
University of Bridgeport, Bridgeport, CT

Abstract

Immigration has been long time debates in USA. American is known as the platform of opportunity for the immigrants. Different people had different mentality for the immigrants, some people are in the favor of immigrants and are ready to stand for their right whereas some people think they are the barriers for this country. Therefore, in this research we are showing the percentages of contribution and the areas where the immigrants are working. Immigration and immigrants are actually helping in the development of USA, the majority of people who are behind the success of the USA are Immigrants.

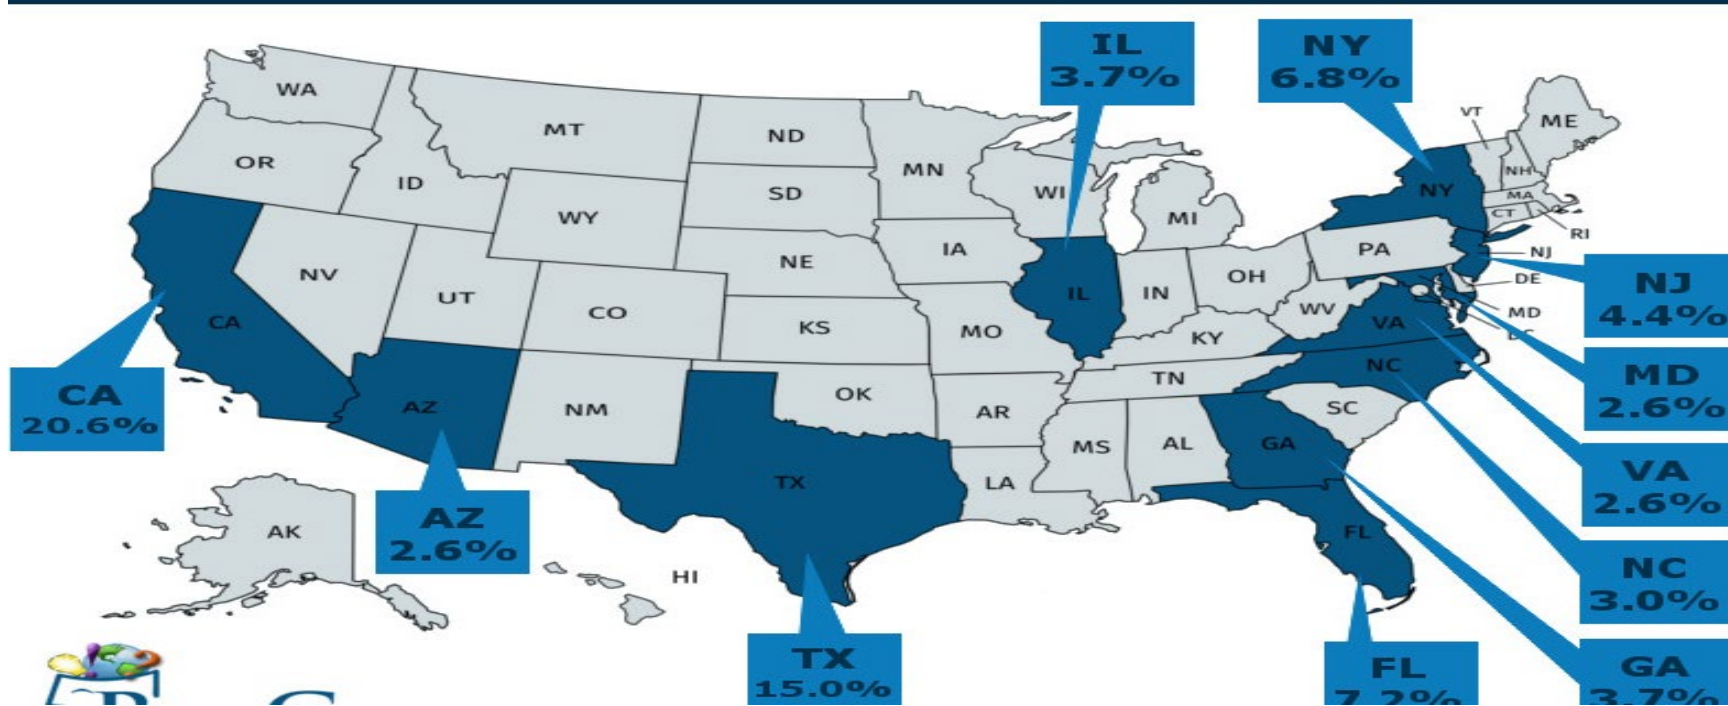

Top Ten Countries of Origin

for the % of 10.7 million undocumented immigrants in the United States in 2016

Top Ten States of Residence

for the 10.7 million undocumented immigrants in the United States in 2016

Introduction

Immigrants shows deep commitment to work ethic. A large majority believed in "extremely important" to work and stay off welfare. They understand that, without hard work their dream of America as the land of plenty would not come true. According to one report, 81% people must work very hard in this country. People will never get everything for free in this country, if you work hard then only you it easy to live here. According to CPS, Immigrants and their U.S.-born children now number approximately 86.4 million people, or 27% of the overall U.S population. As of 2016, the population of undocumented immigrants in the United States is estimated to be 10.7 million, roughly 3.3% of the entire US population. 50.9% of undocumented immigrants were from Mexico, and 20.6% of all undocumented immigrants resided in California. As of 2012, 53% of undocumented immigrants were male. In 2016, approximately 31% of workers in the roofing industry and 24% of maids/housekeepers were undocumented immigrants.

Total population of immigrants in USA

Short-term residents decline and long-term residents rise as share of U.S. unauthorized immigrants

Comparing the Earnings between the Native-born and immigrants in the USA and the ways they are contributing in developing the economic development of the USA.

Median weekly earnings of immigrants and native-born workers

Where immigrants are likely to work

Percent of people in the labor force

Jobs with More Than 200,000 Undocumented Workers of the 10.7 million undocumented immigrants in the United States in 2016

Business owners among the workforce

Business formation rate

Median weekly earnings by educational attainment

Conclusion

From all the above comparison and the charts we can easily analysis that immigrant are actually helping in the different ways in the development of the USA. They are working in those area where the native American people doesn't want to work. Whereas immigrants are just working hard so that they can reach their goal and do something while they are staying over here. They aren't getting as much opportunity as other still they are struggling and trying their best to help themselves and indirectly helping the US Government by paying the taxes and showing their hard works.

References

<https://www.migrationpolicy.org/article/what-immigrants-say-about-life-united-states/>
<https://www.theatlantic.com/charts/4JYKtQedx>
<https://www.epi.org/publication/immigration-facts/#epi-toc-5>